The Wrong Way to Read.

If you have to hold the print too far away to see clearly, the eyes are strained to make out the print. If you have to hold the print too close that will strain the muscles of the eye. Either way is bad. To read the print comfortably you must have your eyes examined and relieved of all strain. GET TO THE CAUSE

Bristol People Are Learning the Way

There is but little peace or comfort for the man or woman with a bad back. The distress begins in early morning—keeps up throughout the day It's hard to get out of bed, it's torture to stoop or straighten. Plasters and liniments may relieve, but cannot cure if the cause is inside—the kidneys. When suffering so, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the tested and proven kidney remedy, used in kidney troubles for over 50 years. Doan's Kidney Pills are recommended by thousands for just such cases. Proof of their effectiveness in the testimony of this Bristol resident.

Charles C. Lawrence, 326 Wood St., Bristol, Pa., says: "About four years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they were so beneficial that I am glad to give them my endorsement. I had often read in the papers about people being cured of kidney trouble by Doan's Kidney Pills, and when I was suffering began using them I was suffering from my kidneys. They lived up to all the claims made for them. The lameness in my back disappeared and my kidneys were strenghened."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

LETTER FROM DOYLESTOWN

Special Correspondence from the County Seat Reviewing Politics and Public Affairs.

Doylestown, October 2

Politics has at last started to boom at the county seat, but only in a half hearted manner The Taft men are "pussy footed" and only once in a great while come out in the open Last week they organized a club in the upstairs room at Lenape Hall once the "Grundy Club"—but since last January, when some of its members lost their sinecures at the court house, a nondescript club, up to the taking of it back into the fold in the interest of Taft.

The return of the wanderers and the opening of the club room was celebrated by numerous speeches by prominent members. Postmaster Keeler gave an account of his life, dwelling on the time when he "picked stones in his bare feet and did about at the milking" thus fitting himself for the responsible office he now holds and he believes that should Taft be re-elected "me and Pete will be re-appointed" Mr. DuBois paid his respects to Roosevelt, paying particular attention to his "treachery" and saying that "there were three important acts of treachery in our country's history, when Benedict Arnold sold West Point to the British for $30,000; when Christ was practically sold for thirty pieces of silver and when Roosevelt sold himself for thirty cents." The Bull Moosers were a good deal stirred up by this speech and call it a sacrilegious assertion The Bull Moose men are aggressive enough, in spots but they lack organization and a good deal of their efforts are wasted. If they had more team work they would make more impression. The Wilson men are aggressive and seem to be fighting with a confidence of victory. They, too, had a meeting on Monday night at which Messrs Roper, Bright and Ryan discussed the tariff and trust issues. The only local mention was a severe condemnation by Mr. Ryan of a story, said to be in circulation which is intended to array a certain religious element against Mr Difenderfer. Outside of these meetings the subject of politics is receiving less attention than it ever has done before

Rev. and Mrs. C W Haines, of the First Baptist church, were given their first experience of county seat hospitality and good fellowship on Monday night. Rev. Haines has just accepted the charge and the reception was given him to let him have a good chance to meet as many of his congregation as possible, but it did not end with his congregation for four of the clergy of the county seat also attended and gave him many kind words of greeting.

The last piece of concrete work was put in place on Monday on the new fountain in front of the court house erected partly from the county seat centennial surplus fund and partly private contribution The fountain is a very handsome one and its tenets blend harmoniously with those of the court house. It certainly reflects credit upon its designer, Mr. Bateman The benches that are to accompany it are not yet placed and will not be until after some arrangement is made about the walk from the street to the court house steps. The walk was originally laid while the old jail stood on the lot adjoining the court house and never was in correct alignment with the court house. It is proposed to change the walks, align them correctly and so arrange them that the benches will not only add to the architectural beauty of the new fountain but also to the court house.

During their spare time the police officers of the county seat are making a house to house inspection to [illegible] number of spigots in use in each house. They have covered about half the houses in the town and already have found numerous spigots for which no water rent is paid This state of affairs arises from the negligence of the plumbers who seldom report any new connections made Borough council will take some steps to prevent a continuance of the present faulty system, but just when is a mystery hidden in the far distant future. Will they talk about it? Oh yes, there will be plenty of hot air and numerous ingenious penalties devised for the offending plumbers, but, as usual, it will be all talk

Members of the Doylestown Nature Club took advantage of the first fine fall day and hied them to the Tohickon, via the Easton trolley Arriving there they walked along the banks of the Tohickon creek to its juncture with Tinicum creek. There they built a fire made coffee and indulged in an al fresco luncheon In their trip the club walked quite a number of miles and found several valuable specimens of plants, etc.

The cost to Bucks county of maintainance for her indigent and criminal insane is growing more rapidly than the increase in population seems to warrant. In 1888, there were just sixty-six, now we have one hundred and fifty-six. No reason is given for this abnormal increase, but all the same it is costing the tax payers of this county almost three times as much as it did twenty-four years ago. It seems that this state of facts not only applies to Bucks county but exists in other counties as well in fact the percentage of increase is greater in Montgomery than it is in Bucks county.

Warning to Voters.

The name 'Progressive' and 'National Progressive' having been preempted by the Taft-Penrose people, the Roosevelt party in Pennsylvania will go on the ticket as the "Washington" party

BRISTOL'S CALAMITY HOWLERS.

The Republican organization in Bucks county is trying to revivify the collapsed Taft campaign by uttering an incessant calamity howl Political meetings have been held and manufacturers pressed into service to tell audiences that unless Taft and Sherman are elected that factories will close and poverty and distress will stalk the land

After those speeches were delivered copies were printed and have been mailed broadcast over the county

The Philadelphia Public Ledger is one of the leading and most reliable Taft papers in the country and the editor of that paper has evidently become acquainted with the silly campaign that is being conducted in Bucks county, because on Monday the leading editorial of that paper was entitled "The Campaign and Prosperity," in which a review was made of the wonderful crop conditions and general prosperous conditions in prospect The Ledger thus deals with the political propoganda in Bucks county as follows

"Under the circumstances Mr Taft and his managers will make the most of the impending and existing prosperity and will ask an indorsement on the record and on the condition of the country and the Government There is another angle of the argument which the sprightly and useful Joseph R Grundy and others are using with good effect, it is said, and that is a recital of the woes to follow Mr Wilson's election, should he be elected

"Workers and people in the opposition ranks are told that the chief industry will be the 'soup house' trade, that men will be without work or wages, that the mills and factories will close and that disaster deep and irrevocable will overtake the fair land of America, which will become uninhabitable because it will become infested by roaming Coxeyites and other bands of untamable tramps

"We don't believe a word of it nor do the men who prophesy evil Prosperity is coming, whether Mr Taft or Mr Wilson shall be elected."

The Ledger then goes on to say that it believes that the election of Roosevelt would shake confidence in the country's future

That the campaign being conducted by Mr Grundy in Bucks and Montgomery counties is of the asinine order is evidenced by no less an eminent authority than President W C Brown, of the New York Central Lines, who just returned from a 10,000 mile trip through the United States and says

In my opinion the United States is going to harvest this year the greatest crops of all kinds that it has ever produced in its history * * * Business men in all parts of the country seem to have made up their minds that the pending Presidential contest need not necessarily interfere with business It seems to be the consensus that no matter which of the three principal parties may be successful no action is liable to be taken which will seriously affect the industrial and commercial business of the country

Dun's Review an impartial and sound business authority, says

"Advices from leading cities both East and West with scarcely an exception speak of a bigger volume of trade, larger advance orders, better employment of labor and a growing confidence that the now practically assured crops make the future secure In every part of the country business optimism is the rule and all other considerations are practically ignored In the light of the conviction that a period of national prosperity has set in which only some great and improbable calamity could stop"

The old "soup house" tales have done duty in many campaigns but at this time is gone by when workingmen can be fooled by any such shallow arguments that the Grundy campaign manager is engaged in circulating

In his campaign for the Presidency Governor Wilson, for whom we have the highest personal regard, seems to be compelled to extend his energies in fighting members of his own party from the time of his nomination for governor of New Jersey Mr Wilson has been engaged in an internecine warfare. He has not only battled relentlessly with the Democratic leaders of the Garden State but on last Sabbath buckled on his armor to fight Murphy, the Tammany Hall chieftain, in order to prevent the renomination of Governor Dix, of New York In the event of either New York or Wilson's election, in practically every State of the union, "gang" candidates for minor positions will be installed into positions of trust. A united front against Roosevelt and the whole vote for progressive ticket carries with it not only a vote for an untrammelled candidate for the highest office in the nation for the highest vote for the highest honor, but also a vote for the highest types of candidates for Congress and State offices.

QUESTIONS?

The Panama Canal proposition was all in a muddle ten years ago Men said the canal could not be built for another generation Who built the canal?

Nobody had ever heard the word "conservation" applied to any national policy ten years ago Who made conservation a part of the settled policy of the United States

For years the railroads blocked every attempt at the regulation of rates by the federal government Who finally forced rate regulation from an unwilling Congress?

Do you recall that the Standard Oil Company, which included Penrose and Quay and Sibley and Lorimer on its payroll was bitterly opposed to establishing the bureau of corporations that has done so much to show up bad practices of corporations Who induced Congress to establish the bureau in the face of this opposition

William Lorimer is no longer a member of the United States Senate Who was it who created such a strong public sentiment that a majority of Lorimer's colleagues were afraid to face their constituents if they voted in favor of the fraudulently elected Senator from Illinois

APPEAL FOR FUNDS

The Progressive Party in Bucks county is fighting for the people's rights and in order to be successful must be supported by the people The Roosevelt Progressive League in Bristol is attempting to perfect an organization throughout the county but this work cannot be done without money for legitimate expenses for meetings, mailing literature, etc So far all expense incurred has been paid from the pockets of workingmen and business men in Bristol This is not a one man's party and therefore an appeal is made to the public spirited men and women of Bristol and Bucks county for contributions to carry on the work here to aid in the election of that superb leader Theodore Roosevelt and the entire Washington Party ticket

Contributions in any amount will be greatly appreciated and receipt acknowledged Contributions may be made to any of the following officers of the Roosevelt Progressive League of Bristol

The check which the comely young German woman handed in at the window of a savings fund a few years since was made payable to one Gretchen H. Schmidt, and she had indorsed it simply Gretchen Schmidt The man at the receiving teller's window called her back just as she was turning away to rectify the mistake.

"You don't deposit this quite this way," he explained. "See you have forgotten the 'H.'" The young woman looked at her check and blushed a rosy red "Ach, so I haf," she murmured, and wrote hurriedly, "Age 25."

Y SCHOOL RKERS MEETING

Bucks county Sunday school workers held their semi annual conference at Solebury meeting house on the afternoon and evening of ninth month Wednesday Lewis Vaughorne, president of the association, presided with Miss Elizabeth Woodman, of Wycombe, assistant clerk

Following a silent devotion and appropriate reading Marian Eastburn, of Buckingham, a delegate to attend the spring meeting at Race street, gave an interesting report and many helpful hints

All the Sunday schools in the Union were asked to have a full representation the day before, and provision for such an occasion, and the kind friends furnishing autos and teams easily transported the guests to and from the meeting house Dr Hope A special car from New Hope accommodated the usual wait at Newtown, and all things conspired to make the day both pleasant and profitable

Hannah Ann Buchman of Buckingham, enumerated points in the life of Jane Addams, which would inspire others to truer living Her example of truthfulness, efforts to help humanity, to secure a living wage, for equal suffrage and testimony against the comic supplement of the Sunday newspaper were discussed This last awoke such a concerted protest against the colored supplement in some of the papers that a committee consisting of Marion Townsend, Mary Wilson and Maud Kenderdine were named to present this matter to the editors

The committee united in saying, At the meeting of the Sunday School Union held at Solebury on the 25th of ninth month a voice in general protest was raised against the demoralizing influence upon the plastic minds of our children by the comic section of your Sunday newspaper, which enters our homes The chief objection being the presentation of false ideals in terms of slang and the merest pretense of English, with vivid pictures to further inspire acts of violence and lawlessness and disrespect toward those older and in authority We hope this will receive your careful consideration

Another to be sent to papers who do not use the colored comic section was The Bucks County Sunday School Union has entered a protest against the comic section of the Sunday newspapers which are felt to have a demoralizing effect upon the minds of the children, and realizing that one of the duties assumed by the magazines of today to be that of public uplift we appeal to you as a representative magazine to aid us in voicing this protest in your pages" Other live topics were discussed.

CORNERSTONE LAID AT TORRESDALE

Bishop Rhinelander Officiated at New School and Parish Building for All Saints Church.

Bishop Rhinelander laid the cornerstone of the new day school and parish building of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal church, Torresdale All Saints' is one of the oldest parishes in Pennsylvania, being fourth in the point of age The graveyard surrounding it is almost 150 years old, and the attendants at the exercises on Saturday stood among the gravestones in the old cemetery The services were impressive, and were marked by a short address by the bishop in which he placed his approval upon the day school project, and expressed the hope that other similar schools would be started by the churches in the diocese

Charles Biddle, a prominent layman of the church, read a list of the articles placed in a copper box which was put into the cornerstone They included a copy of the Bible, book of common prayer, addresses of Bishop Rhinelander and Garland at the recent convention of the diocese, church and daily papers, photographs of the church and rector and reports of the parish work, including a copy of the report of the women's auxiliary, of which Mrs Charles Biddle is president, a catalogue of the school and some coins, among them an old Spanish coin found on the estate by Clifford Philips father of Mrs Walter Massey, and some Chinese coins brought from China by the rector of the church, the Rev A R Vanmeter

Mrs Walter Massey, who gave the first $5000 toward the erection of the building, and who also contributed additional liberal sums, was one of those in attendance Others who contributed to the work were Mrs Charles H Howel, Mrs. G. Asheton Carson, George R Bower, Samuel H Thomas and Alexander Brown

Following the cornerstone laying a reception was held at the rectory, and Saturday night Bishop Rhinelander met the members of the parish in the church Sunday morning he confirmed a class of sixteen persons, and also preached He ended his stay in the parish of All Saints Sunday night, when he presided at the evening service in the chapel at Andalusia

The new building will be used first for a primary school, which will be in charge of Miss Lois G Calmore Next April, Mrs J Scott Anderson, of Swarthmore, who will spend the winter in Europe with Dr Maria Montessori, will open a kindergarden in the school and will use the Montessori system in teaching the children. The system will also be extended to the primary department partially It is planned to start the primary department within a few weeks

The new building, of sandstone, corresponds in its general illness to those of the church. W K Freas, contractor and builder of Andalusia, is in charge of the construction Besides an auditorium on the second floor, the new building will contain a chapel, class rooms and kitchen

Because of the sloping of the ground on which the building has been started, the cloister which will run from the parish building into the church, will be on the second floor By a slight incline the cloister will enter the church on the ground floor, and will be used for the processional of the choir at the services

Funds Pledged for Club House.

Fifteen thousand dollars were subscribed for a new club house for the Bucks County County Club at a dinner given by the president, Charles J Matthews, at his beautiful home, 'Claralys," Langhorne Manor, last Saturday evening Following the dinner a discussion took place concerning the future of the Country Club, and $15,000 was then pledged toward erecting a new building and the purchasing of a tract of land to the north of the borough overlooking the picturesque slope of the Neshaminy Speeches were made by Mr Matthews Richard A Foley, George H Cliff, of Langhorne, Dr Wilmer Krusen, John M Patterson, Watson W Walton, Philadelphia Theodore Search, Newtown, Joseph R Grundy and Walter F Leedom, Bristol Mr Grundy, Mr Leedom and Dr Le Compte pledged specific amounts to aid in the financial campaign

The club has enjoyed many pleasant seasons at its old quarters but a change was deemed advisable and work will start in the Spring on the erection of an up-to-date club house, and, with the new grounds, a most satisfactory golf course will be established

The two vice-presidents of the club are Dr Henry Lovett and J A Taylor, secretary, Charles Langhorne Taylor, treasurer, Henry Briggs

Tax Payer Wants to Know.

I would like to know if a tax payer should be compelled to pay the interest on a $65,000 bond contracted for sewers when they are not completed and likely never to be

What is the trouble? Is it the fault of Council? Why do they not insist that the contractor should live up to his agreement and why does the Borough not have a penalty attached and enforced?

I find the same thing applies to the bridge over the canal at Mill street, Bristol. I have been informed that the contractor has left town and there is no likelihood of his return in the near future And why should the tax payers suffer for these improvements which have not materialized. In other words, they are compelled to pay for something they do not receive

I also think it a good plan to have the new Federal building included in this category We all are agreed that a better location can be secured

[illegible] Council [illegible] a copy of [illegible] been sent out Upon [illegible] H Brooks, Albert Loechner, Lewis Loechner, of Grundy's [illegible] was elected secretary

Upon motion of Louis [illegible] of Grundy's mill, Earl Brown [illegible] nephew of Postmaster Minster was elected president

William Grace, of Pond street was elected treasurer

Ellwood Watt son of Assessor Watt was elected vice-president

James H Brooks made a speech saying that the president [illegible] Brown, would name an executive committee, house committee and finance committee Mr Brooks after this assurance tackled the tariff position, and expressed the fear that Wilson would be elected

Mr Brooks then announced that Michael Dougherty, the civil war veteran desired his name to be enrolled as a member of the club and the names of his sons Mr Brooks read sympathetic letters from [illegible] Landreth and J R Hendrick [illegible] for the enrollment of members were then distributed

Mr Williams called upon William Barnhill, a G A R man for a speech and the latter responded by saying that President Taft had been a great friend of his He also declared that Governor Wilson is unfit to become president because he was born in the South

Mr Williams called upon Frank Scull to address the assemblage wisdom, and the former President of Council then told harrowing tales of the time of Cleveland's administration when honest men could not pay their debts With super knowledge he vouchsafed the information that Woodrow Wilson is nothing but a school teacher and has been [illegible] the world over

Christopher Buechler Sr [illegible] Grundy's mill called upon William Bradley, of Grundy's mill [illegible] light upon the topics of the campaign, and Mr Bradley almost [illegible] financial panic by his lurid description of the times prevailing when Cleveland was president He told his facts how young men during those dark, dismal days who purchased homes, lost them and the banks would not advance any money and that below the Mason and Dixon line the men only get a dollar a day

Mr Spring of Grundy's mill thought too much time was being wasted discussing Presidential candidates and more attention should be paid to the candidates for Congress Mr Williams responded with an eulogy of Oscar O Bean Mr Grundy's candidate for Congress

Mr Buechler then called upon Mr Wood, a young man working at Grundy's mill, for an expression of opinion, and cheerfully responded by stating that he and all his folks had always been Republicans and that Bull Mooses have no reasons for being such He declared that the only reason given by the members of the third party for being Bull Mooses was because Theodore Roosevelt favors the working man

Mr Spring suggested that a regular meeting night be designated Mr Brooks said it was a good idea to meet regularly and chew things over and get them off your chests Monday night of each week was designated

Mr Barnhill called upon School Director David O Taylor, who just entered the room, to make a speech Mr Taylor very humorously replied that he had been away all summer, but he [illegible] had not been chasing Bull Mooses (laughter) He expresses his willingness, however to do anything to help

Mr Williams called upon "Andy" Jeffries for a few kind words but the old veteran, who has not taken much interest in politics since Senator Quay's death declined to respond as did also Lewis Loechner of Grundy's mill, when importuned by Mr Williams Mr Loechner however vouchsafed the information that he would work quietly in the ward

The meeting adjourned to meet next Monday evening Those present at the meeting were George Strause Benjamin Silver, Mr Wood Fred Larzalere, Dr Slaughter Joseph Snyder, Harry Mahan William A Barnhill, G L Williams Andrew Jeffries, Christopher Buechler Sr, James Bossler Frank Scull Lewis C Spring Elwood Watt D O Taylor, Albert Loechner Lewis Loechner Earl Brown Alfred McLaughlin Fred Durkin, William Grace Bud Green William C Watson, James H Brooks, Edgar Titus Policemen Musnuff and Sackville, Lyndall Acker, Harry H Headley and William B Force

Need Funds to Relieve Distress in Bristol.

Editor Gazette —On Tuesday evening October 1st an important meeting of the Ways and Means Committee of the Public Welfare Association was held at the high school

There were about twenty five persons present

The object of the meeting was to form a sub-committee to aid in this important part of the work The raising of funds with which to carry on the ever increasing calls upon the Association

The meeting was opened by the chairman of the committee, Burnet Landreth Jr, who explained at length a plan to hold a Tag Day on October 19th when Bristol will be literally flooded with tags, and it is hoped that every man woman and child in the town, will feel it their great privilege to help as much as possible in making the day a great success

The P W A is here to stay and has undoubtedly become a great factor for good in our community It is less than one year old and yet the relief work done in this short time has been very extensive Following Mr Landreth's remarks on the necessity for funds to meet the demands of the coming winter Mrs Peirce cited several instances, some of them heart rending, wherein the Public Welfare Association has been instrumental in alleviating the various needs of the unfortunate ones applying for help

Now is the time to get together and stand shoulder to shoulder in the great cause of humanity and let us all work together for our less fortunate brothers and sisters who are calling to us for help

And remember Saturday, October 19th, is "Tag Day"

OTHER SPEAKERS

John N Patterson Esq was the next speaker He was identified by the chairman as a gentleman who has a [illegible] home in Langhorne and is [illegible] district attorney in Philadelphia Mr Patterson after paying [illegible] compliments to Thomas K Oter [illegible] the Roosevelt candidate for [illegible] and referring to him as his father's little boy" the speaker directed attention to the difference between the two great parties the Republican party protecting the laborers of Europe and Asia, while the Democratic party believes it is unconstitutional to protect the laborer An other difference is the question of state rights The Republican party believes in a central government while the Democratic party [illegible] 1861 [illegible] they failed [illegible] are trying today and they will meet the same fate

"You [illegible] not the same kind of beef [illegible] Mr Patterson, I have seen the men who came from the other side who had been able to get some [illegible] of that English beef with their low wages and they were thin [illegible] But they had not been here a year eating the good American beef bought with high American wages before they filled out and were good heavy and plump Give me the kind of beef we eat in America

MR SWARTLEY'S ADDRESS

United States District Attorney John C Swartley was the last speaker and reviewed the many acts of the [illegible] administration that have worked for the good of the people He said the attack made upon the constitution is just as dangerous and just as [illegible] fired upon by a cannon Mr Wilson is the most liberally educated candidate that has run for the office of President in a decade or more [illegible] president of a great university a Governor, now a candidate for President But he had it from [illegible] that his administration of the university was such that the institution was almost disintegrated when elected governor his resignation was accepted without regret All [illegible] Dr Wilson has been teaching [illegible] there is a great difference between teaching theory and practicing

Roosevelt from the time of a young man [illegible] through the Republican party

President Taft is also a liberally educated man a lawyer judge, governor of the Philippine Islands, where [illegible] beneficent measures were [illegible] him for the betterment of the [illegible] and the good of the [illegible] Secretary of War and then President of the United States

[illegible] has drifted away from the Republican party because he could not [illegible] a third term In [illegible] would like the hand [illegible]

[illegible] cause for the high cost of living It was Mr Swartley's [illegible] due to our extravagance [illegible] to the effect of the [illegible] of the pure food and drug [illegible] this by giving illustrations [illegible] that came under his own [illegible] observation Heretofore [illegible] purchased pepper, [illegible] of other ingredients, [illegible] without one speck of tomatoes [illegible] butter that was oleomargarine, [illegible] that was anything else but [illegible] through the enforcement of [illegible] and drug act these [illegible] sold as the genuine articles were purchased at low prices [illegible] manufacturers are compelled [illegible] the genuine article and the [illegible] accordingly advanced.

There is but little enthusiasm displayed in the meeting and what applause there was, chiefly was furnished by occupants of the stage

Holding Up a Train

Mode of Operation Described by an Expert

By O. HENRY

Copyright, 1911, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Note The man who told me these things was for several years an outlaw in the southwest and a follower of the pursuit he so frankly describes His description of the modus operandi should prove interesting, his counsel of value to the potential passenger in some future holdup, while his estimate of the pleasures of train robbing will hardly induce any one to adopt it as a profession I give the story in almost exactly his own words O H.

Most people would say, if their opinion was asked for, that holding up a train would be a hard job Well, it isn't, it's easy I have contributed some to the uneasiness of railroads and the insomnia of express company presidents, and the most trouble I ever had about a holdup was in being swindled by unscrupulous people while spending the money I got. The danger wasn't anything to speak of, and we didn't mind the trouble.

One man has come pretty near robbing a train by himself, two have succeeded a few times, three can do it if they are hustlers, but five is about the right number The time to do it and the place depend upon several things

The first "stickup I was ever in happened in 1890 Maybe the way I got into it will explain how most train robbers start in the business Five out of six western outlaws are just cow boys out of a job and gone wrong The sixth is a tough from the east who dresses up like a bad man and plays some low down trick that gives the boys a bad name. Wire fences and "nesters" made five of them, a bad heart made the sixth

Jim S. and I were working on the 101 ranch in Colorado The nesters had the cowman on the go They had taken up the land and elected officers when there was a little fun without malice to anybody when a farmer administration cut in and tried to harvest us Jim shot a deputy marshal, and I kind of corroborated his side of the argument We skirmished up and down the main street the boomers having the luck all the time After awhile we leaned forward and shoved for the ranch down on the Cerisco

Well, there wasn't anything we could get there, and, being mighty hard up we decided to transact a little business with the railroads Jim and I joined forces with Tom and Ike Moore two brothers who had plenty of sand and they were willing to connect into dust We selected a place on the Santa Fe where there was a bridge across a deep creek surrounded by heavy timber All passenger trains took water at the tank close to one end of the bridge It was a quiet place, the nearest house being five miles away.

The Santa Fe flier was due at the tank at 11:15 p m. At 11 Tom and Jim went down on one side of the track, and Jim and Ike took the other As the train rolled up the headlight flashing far down the track and the steam hissing from the engine, I turned weak

The engine had hardly stopped when I jumped on the running board on one side, while Jim mounted the other As soon as the engineer and firemen saw our guns they threw up their hands without being told and begged us not to shoot, saying they would do any thing we wanted them to

"Hit the ground!" I ordered, and they both jumped off. We drove them before us down the side of the train While this was happening Tom and Ike had been blankly following on each side of the train, yelling like catches so as to keep the passengers corded in the cars

By this time all my nervousness was gone I felt a kind of pleasant excitement as if I were at a dance or a frolic of some sort. The lights were all out and, as Tom and Ike with the coaches, and as Tom and Ike had gradually quit firing and yelling it got awfully to be almost as still as a graveyard.

I made the fireman get a lantern, and then I went to the express car and yelled to the messenger to open up or get perforated He slid the door back and stood in it with his hands up "Jump overboard, son," I said, and he did the dirt like a lump of lead There were two safes in the car—a big one and a little one By the way, I first located the messenger's arsenal—a double barreled shotgun with buckshot cartridges and a 38 caliber in a draw er I drew the cartridges from the shotgun, pocketed the pistol and called the messenger inside I shoved my gun against his nose and put him to work He couldn't open the big safe, but he did the little one There was only $900 in it. That was mighty small winnings for our trouble, so we decided to go through the passengers

There were very few people in the day coaches at that time of night, so we made a slim haul until we got to the sleeper I saw Jim coming in the other door, and I hollered for every body to climb out and line up

They commenced to scramble down and for awhile we had a three ringed circus.

The ladies didn't stop to dress They were so curious to see a real, live train robber, bless 'em, that they just wrapped blankets and sheets around themselves and came out squeaky and fidgety looking They always show more curiosity and sand than the men.

We got them all lined up and pretty quiet, and I went through the bunch. I found very little on them—I mean in the way of valuables.

Then Jim held them steady while I searched the berths. I grappled around in those beds and filled a pillowcase with the strangest assortment of stuff you ever saw When I finished I dumped the pillowcase load in the middle of the aisle. There were a good many watches, bracelets, rings and pocketbooks, with a sprinkling of false teeth, whisky flasks, face powder boxes, chocolate caramels and heads of hair of various colors and lengths There were also about a dozen ladies' stockings into which jewelry, watches and rolls of bills had been stuffed and then wadded up tight and stuck under the mattresses.

One of the women—and a good looker she was—wrapped in a striped blanket, saw me pick up one of the stockings that was pretty chunky and heavy about the toe, and she snapped out:

"That's mine, sir. You're not in the business of robbing women, are you?"

Now, as this was our first holdup, we hadn't agreed upon any code of ethics, so I hardly knew what to answer. But, anyway, I replied: "Well, not as a specialty. If this contains your personal property you can have it back."

"It just does," she declared eagerly and snatched out her hand for it.

"You'll excuse my taking a look at the contents," I said, holding the stocking up by the toe. Out dumped a big roll of greenbacks that we afterward found totaled $6000, a 32 caliber revolver and the only thing of the sort I have been a lady's pet weapon, and a silver bracelet

very few, but a man on the dodge has got to have "side kickers" With angry posses and reward hungry officers cutting out a hot trail for him, he must have a few places scattered about the country where he can stop and feed himself and his horse and get a few hours' sleep without having to keep both eyes open

Now I propose to tell why it is easy to hold up a train and then why no one should ever do it.

In the first place the attacking party has all the advantage That is, of course, supposing that they are old timers, with the necessary experience and courage They have the outside and are protected by the darkness, while the others are in the light, hemmed into a small space and exposed, the moment they show a head at a window or door to the aim of a man who is a dead shot and who won't hesitate to shoot.

But, in my opinion, the main condition that makes train robbing easy is the element of surprise in connection with the imagination of the passengers The passenger thinks there are a hundred men lying and shooting outside when maybe there are only two or three.

As to the train crew, we never had any more trouble with them than if they had been so many sheep I don't mean that they are cowards I mean that they have got sense. They know they're not up against a bluff It's the same way with the officers. I've seen secret service men, marshals and railroad detectives fork over their change as meek as Moses. I saw one of the bravest marshals I ever knew hide his gun under his seat and dig up along with the rest while I was taking toll He wasn't afraid He simply knew that we had the drop on the whole outfit.

I will give one instance to support my statement that the surprise is the best card in playing for a holdup

Along in '92 the Daltons were cutting out a hot trail for the officers down in the Cherokee Nation Those were their lucky days, and they got so reckless and sandy that they used to announce beforehand what job they were going to undertake. Once they gave it out that they were going to hold up the M., K. and T. flier on a certain night at the station of Pryor Creek, in Indian Territory

That night the railroad company got fifteen deputy marshals in Muscogee and put them on the train Beside them they had fifty armed men hid in the depot at Pryor Creek

When the Katy flier pulled in not a Dalton showed up. The next station was Adair, six miles away. When the train reached there and the deputies were having a good time, explaining what they would have done to the Daltons if the gang if they had turned up, all at once it sounded like an army firing out side. The conductor and brakeman came running into the car yelling "Train robbers!"

Some of those deputies lit out of the door, hit the ground and kept on running. Some of them hid their Winchesters under the seats. Two of them made a fight, and both were killed.

It took the Daltons just ten minutes to capture the train and whip the crew into submission. In twenty minutes more they had robbed the express car of $27,000 and made a clean getaway

My opinion is that these deputies would have put up a stiff fight at Pryor Creek, where they were expected to be taken by surprise and "tocsined" at Adair, just as the Daltons, who knew their business, expected they would.

I don't think I ought to close without

Y SCHOOL RKERS MEETING

Bull's county Tuesday sabbath school workers held their annual conference at Bristol in the meeting house on the [illegible] hill of ninth month Willbur Jay of Langhorne, presided with Elizabeth Goodman, of Wyoming, assistant clerk

The [illegible] devotion and [illegible] Marian Lanburn, of Bristol, to attend the spring conference at Rave street, gave an interesting report and many helpful [illegible]

All the Sunday schools in the County full representation, the day being called for such an occasion, and [illegible] friends furnishing autos [illegible] easily transported the [illegible] and from the meeting house to [illegible] A special car from [illegible] one

But the outlaw carried [illegible] constantly in his mind and that is what makes him so sore against life—he knows where the marshals get their recruits of deputies He knows that the majority of these upholders of the law were once lawbreakers horse thieves rustlers highwaymen and outlaws like himself and that they gained their positions and immunity by turning state's evidence by turning traitor and delivering up their comrades to imprisonment and death He knows that some day—unless he is first shot—his Judas will set to work, the trap will be laid and he will be the surprised instead of a surprisee at a stickup

That is why the man who holds up trains picks his company with a thousand times the care with which a careful girl chooses a sweetheart. That is why he raises himself from his blanket of nights and listens to the tread of every horse's hoofs on the distant road That is why he broods suspiciously for days upon a jesting remark or an unusual movement of a trusted comrade or the broken mutterings of his closest friend sleeping by his side

And it is one of the reasons why the train robbing profession is not so pleasant a one as either of its collateral branches, politics or cornering the market.

Real Optimism

What a grand old world this is! Have you ever seen a more perfect day than this?"

"Has your salary been raised?"

"No'

"New boy at your house?'

'Oh no nothing like that"

'Perhaps you have received word that you are heir to a fortune?

"Nothing of that kind has happened to me'

'Perhaps you have written a play that somebody has accepted for a production?'

I'm not a writer. Why do you make such a suggestion?"

"I'm just trying to figure out why you think the world is so grand and the day so beautiful"

Oh you're one of those who can't understand why one may be optimistic without having some material reason for it eh? By the way, I've just sold my horse for $2,500 more than I paid for it eight months ago" — Chicago Record Herald.

Frog Egg Curiosities

Frogs are said laid before they really become eggs in the true sense of that word They are always laid under water and when first deposited are covered with a sort of envelope in the shape of a thin membrane In this shape they are very small but as soon as they come in contact with the water they rapidly absorb that element and in so doing go through a queer transformation The thin membrane containing the little seedlike eggs is quickly changed into great lumps of a clear jelly like substance each section joined to the other, the whole forming a string from a few inches to several feet in length On the inside of each of these [illegible] the eggs come to perfection [illegible] due course of time add their quota to the frog population of the world

Defense of Literature

Thackeray was a past patron of the royal literary fund and frequently appeared at its annual dinners It was at one of these dinners—on May 14, 1851—that the novelist made a noble vindication of the dignity of letters "We don't want patrons," he said "we want friends and I thank God we have them And as for any idea that our calling is despised by the world I do, for my part protest against and deny the whole statement. I have been in all sorts of society in this world and I have never been despised that I know of I don't believe there has been a literary man of the slightest merit or of the slightest mark who did not greatly advance himself by his literary labors [illegible] And therefore I say don't let us be pitied any more"

Carlyle Corrected.

At a Royal academy dinner in London on one occasion several artists were expressing their enthusiasm about Titian Carlyle and Thackeray were among the guests

"Its glorious coloring is a fact about Titian" said one man, striking the table to give emphasis to the remark

At his glorious drawing is another fact about Titian" cried another artist

And so they went on until Carlyle, who had been listening in silence to their rhapsodies, interrupted them by saying with a slow deliberation which had its own impressive emphasis

"And here I sit, a man made in the image of God, who knows nothing about Titian and cares nothing about Titian and that's another fact about Titian"

Thackeray was sipping claret at the moment He paused and bowed courteously to Carlyle "Pardon me,' he said 'that appears to me to be not a fact about Titian, but a fact, and a lamentable one, about Carlyle"

G A Sala and His Epitaph.

Among some autograph letters and historical documents sold recently were a series of eight letters by George Augustus Sala addressed to W P Frith, including an amusing forecast of his own epitaph

When I die it may be written on my tomb,
He wrote the worst burlesque ever acted,
He abused the constitutional authorities and with malice prepense
maligned
The Royal Academy of Arts
He did these things he ought not to have done and never did
Those he should have done.
He was stout in person and bloated in countenance, and
He never came to dinner when he was asked
But when he dropped in" unasked was no doubt better company than many invited guests are!

—Pearson's Weekly.

Reminiscence.

"Do you remember the way you used to write the same wise sentence over and over again in your copybook?"

'Yes' replied the politician "Those were the happy days. You weren't afraid somebody was going to dig up something you had scribbled off in an idle moment and use it against you in a campaign —Washington Star.

Quite Businesslike.

He had written to the magazine editor's daughter asking if she could return his love

'How careless of him!" she said, throwing the epistle in the wastebasket. 'He should have inclosed return postage"—Philadelphia Record

CORNERSTONE LAID AT TORRESDALE

Bishop Rhinelander Officiated at New School and Parish Building for All Saints Church.

Bishop Rhinelander laid the cornerstone of the new day school and parish building of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal church, Torresdale All Saints' is one of the oldest parishes in Pennsylvania, being fourth in the point of age The graveyard surrounding it is almost 150 years old, and the attendants at the exercises on Saturday stood among the gravestones in the old cemetery The services were impressive, and were marked by a short address by the bishop, in which he placed his approval upon the day school project, and expressed the hope of other similar schools would be one of the churches needed in the diocese

The corner stone was [illegible] slightly. I threw lumps of clay and bits of stick at it, but it did not move until it was actually struck, when, to our surprise, a wood nightjar flitted a short distance away, alighting on a stump similar to the one which he had left a moment before He immediately flattened his tail against his perch and assumed an attitude which gave him all the appearance of being part of the stump on which he rested.

"I disturbed him repeatedly, and he invariably followed the same tactics He always chose as resting places stumps or branches which his plumage resembled, and he took a position so suggestive of a piece of wood that I should certainly have passed him by had I not been watching his movements and seen him alight."

A DEAL IN STOCKS.

Comment of the Man Who Witnessed the Quick Transaction.

Sitting at his desk on the tenth floor of a Wall street building the man in charge of the investment department of a Stock Exchange house was discussing the bond market with a visitor A message from the telegraph room was laid upon his desk "Pardon me' he said to his visitor as he picked up his telephone instrument and asked for a Philadelphia connection He immediately replaced the receiver, and the discussion of the bond market was resumed. The telephone bell rang 'Pardon me," said the investment expert again as he lifted the telephone instrument "I'll take those fifty shares," he said into the telephone

Evidently he got them He broke off the connection, wrote a message for the wire and sent it off to the telegraph room by a boy The discussion of the bond market was resumed once more and continued until another message came from the wire room The investment expert merely glanced at it and went on with the conversation

His visitor broke in to ask a question "Do you mind telling me the nature of that transaction you have just concluded?" "Just then?" said the investment expert. "Why, I bought fifty shares of an investment stock in Philadelphia by telephone and sold them in Columbus, O, by our private telegraph wire What about it?" "Oh, nothing," said the visitor, "only it occurred to me that a few years ago it might have taken four weeks instead of four minutes to do it" Then they went on with their talk about the bond market.—New York Post

His Preference.

A distinguished eye surgeon tells a good story of his hospital days. Three other young, newly fledged oculists and himself were chatting in their quarters in the hospital when the conversation turned, as was natural in young men, upon the beauty of different colors of eyes One championed the superior brilliancy and sparkle of the blue eye another the depth and fire of the brown, while the third was all for the clear, cool light of the hazel After they had exhausted their eloquence, with the usual effect of confirming themselves in their original opinions, the fifth young sawbones suddenly broke in "I don't care a hang about your blue eyes or your brown eyes or your gray eyes! Just give me sore eyes and plenty of 'em, and I'll be happy."—Saturday Evening Post.

London's First Directory.

How did the world do its business before the publication of directories? The huge directory of London had a first printed forerunner in a slim little volume, "A Collection of the Names of the Merchants Living In and Around the City of London," issued by Samuel Lee of Lombard street in 1677. It was the outcome, most probably of the enterprise of Henry Robinson, a well known writer on commercial matters, who in 1650 opened an office in Threadneedle street, where were kept "particular registers of all manner of adventury labors [illegible] dresses" for the use of all who cared to pay a sixpence.—London Chronicle.

Why the Romans Decreased.

The visiting member of the board of education was examining a class in history, and of one of the brightest pupils he asked the question, "Why did the population of Rome decrease just before the fall of the empire?"

The reply came promptly from a little girl, 'Because the Romans had ceased to practice husbandry"
